ABSTRACT

The Prosecutor Office, as a law enforcement agency, can sociologically be viewed as a legal system entity. The Prosecutor Office is a state institution that carries out its duties in the field of prosecution. Along with the development and dynamics of the existing law, the Prosecutor Office accommodates restorative justice in the Republic of Indonesia Prosecutor Regulation Number 15 of 2020 concerning the Termination of Prosecution Based on Restorative Justice. Before the formation of Prosecutor Regulation Number 15 of 2020 concerning the Termination of Prosecution based on Restorative Justice, many law enforcement events often injured people's sense of justice. This research aims to compare the settlement of criminal acts through Restorative Justice at Purwokerto District Prosecutor Office and Demak District Prosecutor Office. The research method used is sociological juridical, with descriptive-analytical research specifications. The data sources used are primary data and secondary data. The data obtained are presented systematically, and the analysis is carried out using qualitative analysis. Based on the results of the research, it can be concluded that the application of restorative justice at Purwokerto District Prosecutor Office and Demak District Prosecutor Office has fulfilled the principles, considerations, requirements, and procedures as stipulated in the Prosecutor Regulation No. 15 of 2020. And the inhibiting factors that affect the achievement of restorative justice come from legal factors, namely implementation that depends on time factors (Prosecutor Regulation Number 15 of 2020), law enforcement factors, namely law enforcement awareness, namely the public prosecutor in considering a case to apply restorative justice, and cultural factors, namely low awareness of the forgiving culture of the victim to suspects which has an impact on the inability to carry out the process peace.
