The results of this study indicate that the implementation of the KOTAKU Program in Grendeng Village has not been implemented properly. The following are the results of research using perspective what's happening owned by Ripley and Franklin: 1) The actors involved, the actors involved already understand their respective roles and duties, it's just that there are still obstacles in the field related to several BKM and KSM members whose roles are not optimal, 2) Clarity of goals, the KOTAKU Program already has goals clear and directed, program implementing actors have understood the program objectives well, 3) Program Development and Complexity, for coordination and communication between the actors involved has been going well because communication is carried out intensely during program activities, guidelines for rules are clearly stated it's just that actors from KSM institutions don't know about it because they are more directed at technical program activities, 4) Participation in the program, the KOTAKU Program in Grendeng Village is well received by the community, they take part in implementing program activities in the field, 5) factors that influence implementation, the narrowness and density of buildings in Grendeng Village makes it difficult for actors to find land as a means of infrastructure development, some people still view program activities as full of elements of profit for program implementing actors.
