

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

Translation is also considered as an instrument of introducing culture from one community to another. Cultural differences between the source language (SL) and the target language (TL) sometimes cause translation problems. In addition, eight translation techniques were used to translate these National Geographic Magazine Article ‘A Teenage Brains The Impulsive, Moody, Maddening Behavior of Teens Makes Evolutionary Sense’.

However, to be a good translator is not easy. A translator not only have to know meanings, techniques and procedures but also the culture itself. One of the main problem in this job training report is limited knowledge about vocabulary in the source language and target language. Then to overcome the problem many steps such as having a consultation with supervisors and a proofreader, searching vocabulary through online and offline dictionaries or other platforms, and understanding the messages from article helped to overcome the obstacles and to produce a good translation result.

B. Suggestion

For students who choose a translation for their focus, there are main focus that they must to know. First, they must have an insightful knowledge and a good references. Second, they must understand the grammatical structure of their translation object that used in the process of transferring into the target language. Third, they must repeatedly practice translating a text to improve their translation result and increase their vocabulary.
