

CHAPTER V CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

Nowadays, one of the transportation that many people often use is the train. Railway transportation has given benefits to people, including supporting comfortable and safe travel for its consumers. There is a train station in the Purwokerto area that passengers visit every day, which is in Purwokerto Train Station. It provides various facilities for passengers that are not only local but also come from overseas.

From the existing facts, a problem is faced, which is a lack of information about Purwokerto Train Station that can be accessed and known by many people. This problem becomes the main cause of this job training project. Because of that, a digital bilingual catalog of the information from Purwokerto Train Station is wanted to be made by the writer. This catalog is expected to provide information to the community and foreign visitors and increase the number of train customers.

B. Suggestion

For those who want to create a catalog in the future, several things must be carefully prepared. The first thing is to determine the target market by researching what their needs, desires, and problems are. The second thing is to gather content ideas and information needed for the creation of a catalog. The third thing is to create a design and concept that is as attractive as possible so that people are interested in reading it. The last thing to consider is that the writing process must also be considered carefully by writing in a language that is clear, persuasive, and simple. With proper preparation, catalog content can be created effectively and successfully achieve the desired goals.
