CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

The job training program has been a useful experience, bridging the gap between academic understanding and practical application in a professional setting. Obtaining hands-on experience throughout the program, building technical skills, and learning about the industry's day-to-day operations have created memorable impression. This exposure has enabled me to apply the academic knowledge gained during my studies to real-world settings, thereby improving my problem-solving and decision-making abilities.

One of the most important components of this program was the opportunity to work with seasoned professionals who offered direction and mentorship. Observing their experience and learning from their insights has expanded my understanding of workplace efficiency, teamwork, and industry best practices. In addition, the training improved our capacity to work under pressure, adapt to new problems, and communicate effectively in a professional setting.

Furthermore, the training period aided my personal development by enhancing time management, self-discipline, and capacity to work with others. The program's hands-on approach has equipped me with valuable practical knowledge that will help me in my future job.

Overall, this training experience has been a huge step forward in my professional development. It has prepared me for real-world problems, taught me essential skills, and given me a better grasp of my professional goals. It was a good
